Chalkboard Bulletin Board

Crayola® makes this fantastic paint now called chalkboard paint. You can paint it on walls, tables or anywhere you desire and it will instantly turn into a chalkboard surface when dry. I painted over a bulletin board for this project, giving it a dual use. If you have kids, it might be fun to paint a closet door for them.

Materials:

Bulletin board
Crayola® chalkboard paint
Brush
Silver spray paint
Ribbon

Total Cost: $12

Total Time: 30 minutes

Directions: First spray paint the natural wood of the frame with a flat silver spray paint and let it dry. Then paint the bulletin board surface with the chalkboard paint; at least two coats will be needed. To hang the board, you can either use nails or take a long ribbon and staple it to the back of the board with a heavy-duty staple gun. Position each end a few inches from the corners so it will hang balanced. To erase the chalkboard messages, you can use a chalkboard eraser or a wet sponge.
